ADVOCACY

Enhancing Self-Advocacy and Public Policy Work

People On the Go of Maryland (POG)

People on the Go of Maryland (POG) is a statewide self-advocacy group led by people with developmental disabilities. With support from the Council and the Maryland Center for Developmental Disabilities, POG works to improve issues that affect people with developmental disabilities. POG educates and advocates for change with state agencies, the state legislature, and the community. POG also provides training, assistance, and support to a network of local self-advocacy groups. This helps them be informed about issues, build skills, speak for themselves, and be strong advocates.

Project Learn

The Arc Central Chesapeake Region

This project will train 30 middle and high school students with developmental disabilities in Caroline County. The goal is to give them information and skills to:

- Take control of their Individual Education Programs (IEP) and 504 plans.
- Advocate for their educational needs.

The project will also train up to 20 family members about IEPs and 504 plans. These are formal plans that schools develop to give students with disabilities the support they need. Because of this project, more students will get the services and supports they need to learn and succeed.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE

LEADING to Learn: Training on Working with Individuals with Developmental Disabilities for Correctional Supervisors

Loyola University

In partnership with the Council, Loyola University will develop and implement a training program for correctional supervisors in the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services (DPSCS) – Division of Correction Jessup Correctional Region. To make this happen, Loyola will:

- Train and support people with developmental disabilities to help train correctional supervisors.
- Conduct 12-15 training sessions.
- Train 300 correctional supervisors in 4 facilities.
- Evaluate the program and replicate it in other correctional regions.

This will help correctional staff provide better support for people with developmental disabilities in Maryland’s jails and prisons.

COMMUNITY SUPPORTS

Rebuilding DDA Providers with Technical Assistance

Penn-Mar Human Services and TransCen Inc.

Community service providers across the state responded to COVID by developing different and creative ways to support people. This project builds on that work. It will improve the way people with developmental disabilities receive services and supports. As a result, more people will live the lives they want. To make this happen, Penn-Mar and TransCen will:

- Provide assistance and training to providers.
- Create a learning group to help the providers learn from each other.
- Help the providers develop and put in place plans to guide the change they want.
- Train a group of people with developmental disabilities.
- Support people with developmental disabilities and family members to share input with providers about what they need and want.
- Share the information learned from the project at a statewide conference.

LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT

Partners in Policymaking®

The Arc Maryland

Partners in Policymaking® (Partners) is in its 4th year. It is a leadership developmental program designed for people with developmental disabilities and their families. The program prepares participants to advocate for what they need in their own lives. It also prepares them to be leaders that bring about change that helps others. This year The Arc Maryland and People on the Go of Maryland worked together to create Empowering Partners. It will provide more support to people with developmental disabilities who are in the Partners program. The Partners program is a series of ten sessions and other learning activities. Topics include: history of the disability movement, self-advocacy, inclusive education, assistive technology, legislative process, and advocacy. Partners graduates are prepared and supported to take action after they graduate. They support and learn from each other to bring about change.

What Matters

What Matters shows how good planning and creative support helps people live good lives. It does that by telling the stories of 9 people with developmental disabilities who work and enjoy other activities in their communities.

What's Possible: 9 Stories of Changed Lives

What's Possible tells the story of 9 people who used to live at the Rosewood Center. Rosewood was an institution for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities. It closed in 2009. People who lived there finally got a chance to live in the community again. Their stories show how much their lives improved.
